—John Samuel Crosby is quite an important adjunct to the Crosby family, in that he is the only grandson. He is the third child, but first son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Crosby of Hanford, Texas, and is named for his grandfather, Mr. John S. Crosby, and his grandfather on the maternal side, Mr. Samuel E. Kimball, superintendent of Arlington highways.

—The A. V. F. A. gave an entertainment and dance in Menotomy Hall, Wednesday evening, at which an attractive program was presented. The committee of management and floor directors consisted of Messrs. Charles G. Barry, F. Joseph Cahalin, Edw. W. Schwamb, J. M. Mead, John F. Connolly. The program was as follows, with Miss Lucy Butler as accompanist:—

Duet, Mrs. Beauchemin and Mr. Wm. Kelley; soprano solos, Miss Evelyn Francoe; whistling solos, Miss Jennie McCarthy; buck and wing dance, Dan'l Doyle and Jos. Ahern; contralto solo, Mrs. Beauchemin; comic song and reading, Mr. Frank Burnas; tenor solo, Mr. Wm. Kelley.

Several of these numbers were particularly fine, but all were enjoyed. Following this feature there were light refreshments and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

—The annual meeting of the Arlington Orthodox Congregational society was held on Monday evening, Jan. 19, in the vestry of the church, with Mr. Edward O. Grover as moderator and Mr. Frank E. Lane, clerk pro tem. The following officers were unanimously elected for one year:—

Clerk, Pliny B. Fiske.
Treas. and Collector, Edmund H. Norris.
Standing Com., William A. Muller, Howard W. Spurr, Elbert L. Churchill.
Music Com., Solon M. Bartlett, Gardner S. Cushman, Willard G. Rolfe.
Auditor, Albert W. Trow.

The appropriations made were the same as last year. The financial standing of the parish is excellent and all expenses are covered by funds at the command of the treasurer. There was a small attendance at the meeting, but those present evidently looked after the business with as much foresight and ability as a larger number may have been capable of.

—The Loyal Temperance Legion had a New Year's entertainment, on Tuesday last, in St. John's parish house. Forty members were present, each bringing a friend. In all about 100 persons, young and old, filled the room. The program began with a temperance play, "The Demon of the glass." The parts were taken as follows:—

Pennington, Waldo Bacon; his friend, Chester White; servant, Harold Needham; fairy, Florence Beers; poverty, Ruth Belyea; disease, Ernest Beers; crime, Lawrence Cloyd; wife and child, Dolly Bonds and Grace Belyea.

After this the officers for the new quarter were publicly installed. Ruth McClellan sang a plantation song, in character. The musical numbers were march, "Jollification," selection and waltz by orchestra, violin, Wm. Smith; bass violin, Harvey Bacon; piano, Waldo Bacon, pianoforte solo, Ruth Belyea. The whole company were then served with ice cream and cake, and separated after three cheers for Mr. Yeames, superintendent of the Legion.

—Mr. Albert H. Goodwin and his little grand nephew, Master Murray Walcott, observed their birthdays together on Sunday, both occurring on the same day, when Mr. Goodwin was a guest at dinner in honor of the joint festival of his niece, Mrs. A. M. Walcott, at her charming home, 46 Mountfort street, Boston. Mrs. Walcott, nee Miss Maude Pierce, is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pierce of Arlington.

—Rev. S. C. Bushnell and Mr. J. Howell Crosby were guests of Past-Com. A. H. Knowles at the 37th annual reunion of the 24th Mass. Regimental Association on Tuesday. It was held at the American House in Boston and was largely attended. Comrade Knowles, as president of the association, presided at the banquet and our informant says he filled the position admirably, introducing fourteen speakers, those already named being on his list.

—Mr. Geo. H. Rice, manager of Moriarty's Arlington Branch shoe store in Dodge Bldg., tells us that the firm is much pleased with its business opening here. The sales have been brisk and larger than was expected and by seeking to furnish what customers want, at the most reasonable prices, the prospect is that there is an opportunity to build up an excellent business. If people can buy what they want, just as good and just as cheap, in Arlington, they will not go to Boston.

—Mr. Charles W. Allen, of Arlington, at the head of the Allen, Thompson, Whitney Co., furniture concern, with large ware houses on Canal St., Boston, went to Greenwhich, in the central part of the state, on Monday, to superintend the opening of the new factory there, Tuesday. The old factory was destroyed by fire some time ago, and the new one is now just ready for operating. This was the second time Mr. Allen's firm was a serious loser by a disastrous fire, so we trust this third structure will bear a magic charm to ward off the always to be dreaded destroyer.

—The Trader's Association met with Mr. Chas. H. Stevens at his home on Mass. avenue, Tuesday evening, and although only a sufficient number was present to make a quorum and transact business, a genuine interest was shown in the organization, and the sentiment expressed that it ought to be maintained in spite of all odds and even in the face of an apparent lack of interest by the traders generally. Current business was transacted and some informal discussion of affairs constituted the main events of the meeting. The next meeting will be held in February with Mr. Wm. D. Higgins, on Bartlett avenue.

—Mrs. M. J. Colman gave up the new house on the C. P. Wyman estate, Pelham terrace, this week, which she has used in connection with her other two boarding houses in the same neighborhood. Her lease expires the first of February, and as she has made extensive alterations on the old Deacon Field estate, Pleasant street, recently purchased by her, her facilities are greatly increased, so she has no further use for this third house. The barn adjoining the Pleasant street house has been remodelled so as to afford eleven excellent rooms, which have been fitted up in an inviting manner.

—Mr. Henry Bodenstein, residing at 21 Central street, a valued employee at the Wm. T. Wood Ice Tool Manf., met with a serious accident, on Friday forenoon of last week, Jan. 16th. While dismounting a large elevator ice planer, one of the knives slipped out of its place and Mr. Bodenstein lost partial control of the bulky instrument, which slid down on him, the knife striking him in the thick part of the thigh and inflicting a deep wound. He was taken to his home, the physician summoned, who dressed the wound, which is now healing as rapidly as can be expected.

Death's Sudden Call.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles P. Wyman took place at her late residence, corner of Pleasant street and Pelham terrace, Arlington, on Sunday, Jan. 18, at 2 o'clock, and was in charge of J. H. Hartwell & Son, Rev. Frederick Gill of the Unitarian church, conducted the services, which were given an added impressiveness by the selections of the Imperial Male Quartet, very beautifully sung. One of the most lavish displays of flowers seen for a long time marked this sad death and were sent as memorials from innumerable friends, and surrounded the gray casket, enshrining it in a bower of floral beauty. On the casket was an immense wreath of easter lilies and violets, while this purple flower was shown in great profusion. Mrs. Wyman looked no less lovely than in life and as peaceful as in a natural repose. The burial was at Mt. Auburn where two children already lie.

Mrs. Wyman's death was a great shock to her family and friends, many of the latter not even being aware of her sickness, it was so sudden and of such short duration, all transpiring within a week's short span, on Thursday evening, Jan. 15th, from an attack of pneumonia which began with what was supposed to be only a slight chill. Every kindness and attention was shown her by a devoted physician, nurses and generous, thoughtful friends, but with no avail, the patient's strength not being sufficient to withstand the ravages of the dread malady.

Georgianna E. True was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry True, of So. Boston, but spent many of her younger years in New York, in which city her mother died a few years since. She married Mr. Wyman and came to reside at Arlington nearly thirty years ago. There were four children of this union, two only surviving, Mr. Fred and Miss Heleu Wyman. The family resided for several years on Academy street, but soon after the death of their son Rachle, which occurred about twenty years ago, they removed to the handsome new house then just completed which has been the home of the family ever since. Mrs. Wyman was of a peculiarly lovable disposition, never complaining, always making the most of what life offered, and in her bearing uniformly kind and courteous. In her younger years she was strikingly beautiful, but this outward adornment of person only increased in character as the years went by and she leaves a life full of fragrant memory to all who knew and loved her.

Amateur Dramatics.

One of the best and most finished amateur dramatic performances ever witnessed here was given in Town Hall, Arlington, Thursday evening, by a group of talented young people of Winchester, in aid of Holy Ghost Hospital and under the auspices of the Arlington Branch of the Aid Association. Mr. John A. Bishop, president of the local branch, managed the affair with entire success, the hall being filled in every part by a dressy and appreciative audience. After the first act, beautiful bouquets of flowers were presented to the performers and they can be assured they earned them right royally. The comedy-drama in four acts, entitled "A Fisherman's Luck," was given and abounded in thrilling incidents, founded on a deep and well laid plot, with no end of laughable episodes, so that tears and laughter followed each other in rapid succession. Mr. Philip A. Hendricks assisted as property-man, and the stage, in the several acts, was appropriately set, and the performance proceeded almost as smoothly as a professional play. Mr. Aylward was excellent in his tragic role, Mr. Harrold great as the comedian, and Mr. Kelliher almost equally so, while the ladies were all far above the average in talents and appearance, dressing and acting their roles with exceptional taste and intelligence. The cast in full was as follows:—

Tom Manley, a poor fisherman.
J. Joseph Aylward
William Farren, Arlen Squire Hammond, Chas. T. Daly
James Hammond, Farren's son, Chas. T. Daly
David Morris, known as "Uncle Davie," Arthur V. Marshall
Silas Kidder, stage-struck rustic, Dennis F. Kelliher
Rev. Geo. Medhurst, Chas. J. Harrold
Rose Prescott, Hammond's Ward, M. E. O'Leary
Mrs. Manley, Tom's mother, Miss Lillian E. McCarthy
Ruth Manley, Tom's sister, Miss Agnes V. O'Leary
Little Nellie, a waif of the ocean, Miss Helen E. Daly
Miss Rhoda H. Foley

During the acts and in the descriptive parts in the play, Connell's orchestra played delightfully, the violin selections being especially fine. Strikingly effective, also, was the male quartette selections. The play was not concluded till 11 o'clock, after which time the young people present danced till two o'clock and had an enjoyable time. Mr. D. W. O'Brien was floor manager and the ushers assisted him. They were Messrs. Wm. Granham, John H. Savage, David Shean, Chas. Hurley, Joseph McWeeney, Bernard Rogers.

The Associates' Monthly.

The January dance of the Twenty-one Associates took place in their beautiful hall, Mass. avenue, Arlington, Wednesday evening current. It was a good sized and, as usual, exceptionally social and informal assembly of friends and neighbors of mine hosts and every one seemed to enter into the spirit of the dance with zest and complete enjoyment. The ladies were attractively attired, Miss Pierce looking exceedingly well in a decoletee satin striped pink gauze, as did also Miss Locke, from Somerville, in white point d'esprit, trimmed with innumerable rows of white satin ribbon. There were very few full dress toilettes, aside from these.

Dr. Chas. A. Dennett had the management of the party in charge, assisted by Messrs. Edwin S. Farmer, Frank E. Thompson, Winthrop Pattee. Custer furnished excellent music and there was a never failing bowl of punch in one of the ante rooms of the hall. At intermission some jolly groups got together and had a pleasant time over the refreshments served by Caterer Hardy in the supper room. These included all kinds of ices, frozen pudding, cake, coffee, etc., and were served from a handsomely decorated table placed in the centre of the room. Instead of the customary reception, the dance opened with a military march, led by Dr. and Mrs. Dennett. The following were present and most of them took part in the march:—

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Sears.
" Edwin S. Farmer, Miss Locke.
" Mrs. Wm. H. Pattie.
" Winthrop Pattee, Mrs. Arthur H. Paul.
" Wm. H. Huntton, Mrs. George W. Storey.
" Monroe Hill, Miss Edna Pierce.
" and Mrs. Frank Norwood Bott, and Mrs. Bott.
" and Mrs. Theodore F. Allen.
" " Chas. W. Allen.
" " Stuart W. Allen.
" " Frank H. Hubbard.
" " Walter A. Robinson.
" " Alfred L. Young.
" Roger Homer, Miss Homer, Miss Alice W. Homer, Miss Gray.
" Clarence O. Hill, Miss Peck.
" Mr. Elliot R. Fowle, Miss Helen Taft.
" and Mrs. Geo. O. Russell.
" " R. D. Greene.
" " John L. Taylor.
" " Frank W. Wunderlich.
" " William H. Cutler.
" Wilson Fay, Miss Harriet Gott.
" and Mrs. Fowle, Newton.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special Correspondence.)

Probably the most sumptuous smoking rooms in this country are those which the government has provided for the members of the house of representatives in the rear of representatives' hall. The chairs are luxurious affairs, upholstered in buff leather, while the couches and sofas are of the same material. The rugs and pictures are as fine as those found in any of the public buildings, and here the members retire and smoke and gossip and yet are able to keep track of what is going on in the house through the wide, swinging glass doors. There is but one rule in the smoking room, and it applies to that used by the Democrats as well as that of the Republicans. It hangs in the center of the wall of each and reads, "Strangers and cigarettes not permitted in this room." The rule is religiously obeyed, although nobody seems to know who first promulgated it. The most atrocious cabbage cigar is permitted to exhaust itself, but the finest Turkish cigarette is not tolerated for an instant. Recently Congressman Joy of Missouri, who is a confirmed consumer of paper pipes, inadvertently lighted one in the Republican smoking room. Before he had taken a second whiff several of the members ordered an assistant sergeant-at-arms to read the rule to him. Mr. Joy dropped his cigarette and made his way to the house restaurant, where everything goes.

White House Electric Plant.

The lighting of the White House will be a feature of future receptions. The rehabilitation of the White House included the installation of a complete new electric plant. The contract was let to Harry Alexander of New York. Mr. Alexander sent one of the most expert electricians in the country to superintend the work. This was Charles M. Maxwell, who had been in charge of the electrical exhibits at the Paris exposition and who was formerly superintendent of electric lighting for George A. Fuller & Co., the contractors and builders. Mr. Maxwell took great pride in the work and has received many compliments on his successful efforts. Speaking of the plant, Mr. Maxwell said:

"The electrical installation in this building is the result of six months' hard work. There are in all about 168,000 feet of electric wire, all of which is incased in iron conduits, each system being entirely distinct one from another."

To Patrol the Atlantic Coast.

One of the most important developments of the new system of naval mobilization adopted by the navy department is the establishment of a coast division of the north Atlantic squadron. Its duty will be to patrol the Atlantic coast. Rear Admiral J. H. Sands, now in command of the League Island navy yard, will be given the command, with the battleship Texas as his flagship, the squadron including the monitors Puritan, Amphitrite, Miantonomah, Terror and Arkansas and the monitors Nevada and Florida as soon as they are commissioned, together with the torpedo boat destroyers Decatur and Chauncey, half a dozen torpedo boats comprising a torpedo boat flotilla and the submarine Holland and submarines Adder and Moccasin when they are commissioned.

Bachelors Are Scarce.

The woeful absence of the eternal masculine in Washington has an important bearing upon the leniency of social arbiters. The national capital comes dismally near being an Adamless Eden so far as single men are concerned.

Owing to the dearth of commercial and industrial possibilities practically all the ambitious young men migrate as soon as they are old enough to come to a realization of the situation, whereas most of the men who come to the dream city on the Potomac as members of congress or to assume governmental positions are married, and not a few of them leave sons at home and bring daughters—allured by the prospect of a social career—to swell the hopeless surplus of young unmarried women.

Senator Hoar's Little Joke.
"Can I say that you have been talking to the president on the trust problem?" asked a reporter of Senator Hoar when he came out of the president's office this morning. The senator smiled his most serene smile, stopped, looked at the sky and said:

"Let me see. Yes, you could say that. Certainly you could say it."

"Then, senator"—the reporter interrupted.

Sensor Hoar waved his hand.

"Yes," he said again, "you could say that, but it wouldn't be true."

And the venerable man from Massachusetts chuckled for three blocks.

One on Senator Nelson.

During the speech of Senator Nelson of Minnesota against the admission of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona as states the senator said that 50 per cent of the population of New Mexico is Spanish and Mexican. Delegate Rodey of New Mexico, who was listening to the speech, scribbled a note and sent it to Nelson. It said:

Dear Senator—I recently had occasion to inquire into the matter, and much to my surprise I find that 57 per cent of the population of Minnesota is Norwegian. How on earth did that state get in?

Opulence in Washington.

Washington society now contains a larger percentage than usual of the opulent in addition to the more than comfortably well off. Some of the great fortunes of the continent are being centered here in preference to the metropolis; hence these dinners, these dances and these dinner dances; hence these orchids, this champagne and terrapin, this feast of pate de foie gras and flow of burgundy.

HER FIRST $100.

What the Delightful Creature Did With It After Much Advice.

How she acquired it it does not really matter—possibly by teaching school, painting fire screens or washing. Anyway when she found herself in possession of the sum she set about to see what she could do with it.

Certain amiable friends told her it would be very nice to buy some new dresses, hats, gloves, shoes and such. But she had a full assortment and didn't require anything of the sort. An aunt told her to invest it in a certain telegraph stock that would bring in good interest.

"But I want my hundred dollars all to myself, you know."

"Poor, foolish dear, it will all be yours, just the same. You can use the interest just the same. I know where you can draw—why, 6 per cent."

"What? That is only $6 a year! Six dollars is awfully small by the side of this. I'm going to count it again. Maybe some of it is gone."

The very thought of such a thing made the little creature chatter. For the tenth time that day she sat down and counted the talismanic roll of bills—four twenties, one ten and two fives. It was all right, and her pulse resumed its normal beat. Suddenly she gave a little shriek of delight and jumped up and cried:

"I know just what I shall do! I'll get it busted. I think that's what they call it."

"Child, what are you talking about?" "Talking about finance, auntie. I'm going to make this stinky little roll into a big one. It doesn't show off at all."

"You are queer, dear."

"I'm going to get it all in five dollar bills. I think the pictures on the fives are ever so much prettier." Life seemed more rosy after the delightful creature possessed twenty nice, crisp fivers. She counted and recounted them when another fancy came.

"I'm tired looking at these common bills. They don't jingle and ring. I'm going to get five nice, clean, new twenty dollar goldpieces." No sooner was it said than done. The table rang for two days as she tossed the bright yellow pieces about like jack stones. Even then she wasn't quite happy. The little pile of twenty dollar yellow boys looked so small. Then she counted about and got together 100 silver dollars. She polished every one daily and played with them. Next she got 200 fifty cent pieces. But life was still an aching void. She at last owned $100 in twenty five cent coins. Surely she must be satisfied now. But no; she broke into one of the quarters, felt discouraged after that and was quite unlike her old self until she found one little nickel left, the very last coin of the hundred dollars that had caused her so much trouble.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Snakes.

There exists among many persons a belief that snakes are creatures of more or less defective organization. Deprived of legs and reduced to effect their movements by sinuous windings of their elongated bodies and tails, they have an appearance of helplessness which may by itself excite compassion. Yet no mistake of the kind could well be greater. The principles of evolution suffice to make it evident that the structure of serpents must be tolerably good or else they could never have survived nature's many destructive agencies. But, in fact, their structure is a marvel of admirable contrivances and accurate adjustments, so that we must affirm them to be as perfectly adapted to their requirements and peculiar modes of life as any other animals.—Quarterly Review.

Leogoclanism.

"Well," said the man who had come in from the remote wilds, "I suppose you've took your seat in congress ag'in."

"No. You remember, I had the misfortune to be defeated."

"You don't say! And after me travelin' forty mile to vote for you! The folks out our way will shore be surprised. So you ain't goin' to sit in congress no more?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Well, well! Things are certainly goin' queer these days. I reckon they'll be movin' the Washington monument next."—Washington Star.

Mrs. G.—A different thing altogether. She has no servants, but she knows perfectly well that we have several and that every one of them will get mad and leave if the family is increased.—New York Weekly.

Pedagogy.

"But," objected the visitor, "quite a number of your pupils have broken down and become imbeciles."

"True," replied the eminent educator, "but we confidently expect better things in the future. The bacillus of overstudy having now been identified and a serum for its destruction devised, we look for no further trouble of the kind you mention."—Life.

Whether or not a man succeeds in life sometimes depends on whether he spurs himself or spares himself.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

QUEEREST OF LAWSUITS.

A Highwayman Sued His Partner For His Share of Spoils.

Perhaps the most remarkable suit ever brought in on the records of the court of the exchequer in England. It was filed on Oct. 3, 1725, and it sets forth very clearly that John Everitt and Joseph Williams were highway robbers.

In its succinct legal phrases the complaint says that the men formed a partnership for the purpose of carrying on business as highwaymen. It was mighty profitable, as was shown by the fact that Everitt sued Williams for the equivalent of $5,000, "being for moneys wrongfully appropriated to defendant's private purse."

This was the amount in dispute after the partnership had lasted only a year. Then Everitt claimed that he discovered that his partner had not made a fair division of the spoils.

The action was adjudged to be a gross contempt of court, and the plaintiff was ordered to pay all costs, while the solicitors who served the writ were fined. One of the solicitors, a man named Wreathcock, refused to pay the fine and was sent to prison for six months. Both plaintiff and defendant to the action were subsequently hanged, one at Tyburn and the other at Maidstone.

Trivial Cause of Wars.

History records one war that was caused by a glass of water—the war of the Spanish succession. A lady, Mrs. Masham, a celebrated court beauty, was carrying a glass of water when she was obstructed by the Marquis de Torcy. A slight scuffle ensued, and the water was spilled. The marquis lost his temper, and had feeling ensued between the English and French courts, with the ultimate result that war was declared. The campaign cost France many severe battles—viz. Blenheim, 1704; Ramillies, 1707; Audenard, 1708, and Malplaquet, 1709.

Fully as absurd in its origin was the war that took place during the commonwealth of Modena. A soldier stole a bucket from a public well belonging to the state of Bologna. Although the value of the article did not exceed a few pennies, the incident was the signal for a fierce and prolonged war. Henry, the king of Sardinia, assisted the Modenese to retain the bucket, and in one of the subsequent battles he was made a prisoner. The bucket is still exhibited in the tower of the cathedral of Modena.

Uncle Isrul's Foresight.

Uncle Isrul Trask was one of those thrifty Yankees who, his neighbors averred, would squeeze a dollar "till the eagle on it hollered" before allowing it to leave his pocket. He was a shopkeeper in a small way, but his business had not proved in the long run so profitable as his several matrimonial ventures, which had been three times celebrated. Soon after the last event of the kind had been solemnized, one of his intimates rallied him with:

"Well, Uncle Isrul, heard's how you'd be'n an' done it ag'in. How'd you make out this time? Pooty well, as usual, hey?"

"Well, neighbor," drawled Uncle Isrul, in his soft and sauntily way, "I did pooty well, 's you may say, pooty well. Ye-es, Hetty's a godly woman, neighbor; a godly woman—with a lee-tle prop'ity." New York Times.

How Fruits Act.

The Medicine Brief thus summarizes the various uses of fruit in relieving diseased conditions of the body. The list is worth keeping. Under the category of laxatives, oranges, figs, tamarinds, prunes, mulberries, dates, nectarines and plums may be included. Pomegranates, cranberries, blackberries, sumac berries, dewberries, raspberries, barberries, quinces, pears, wild cherries and medlars are astringent. Grapes, peaches, strawberries, currant berries, prickly pears, black currants and melon seeds are diuretics. Gooseberries, red and white currants, pumpkins and melons are refrigerants. Lemons, limes and apples are stomach sedatives.

The Gardener Bird.

The highest development of the decorative instinct in animals is found in the gardener bird (amylornis). This plain looking native of New Guinea builds its nest on the ground, spreads moss before it and over this green carpet scatters bright berries, flowers and insects. As the flowers wither they are replaced by fresh ones. The whole establishment serves only as a sort of pleasure resort.

A Sensitive Point.

"Isn't it a great satisfaction to be able to assist those who call on you for help in the struggle of life?"

"It would be," answered Mr. Cumrox, "if you could be sure some of your beneficiaries weren't laughing at you behind your back and calling you an easy mark."—Washington Star.

Progressive.

"Are you having a pleasant time?" asked a lady of a little miss at a fashionable children's party.

"Delightful, thanks."

"And will your papa and mamma come later?"

"Oh, dear, no; papa and mamma and I don't belong to the same set."

Does It Himself.

"They say some blind people can actually distinguish colors by the sense of touch."

"That's nothing; there are times when I feel blue myself."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

NEW SHORT STORIES

An Uncomfortable Seat.

For a Happy Day

By M. M'C. WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1902, by the
S. S. McClure Company

Out in the garden Philomena sang so sweet and high it was like the scent of the clove pinks. They stretched in a matted mass all up and down the old fashioned borders. The garden was big, and a wide, weathered gray house brooded beside it. Time was when the Tryon house had been the finest and most hospitable in all the countryside. In the day of broken fortunes it still kept an aroma of cheery good will.

Lusty hundred leaf roses grew behind the bordering pinks. Philomena was snipping them ruthlessly, cutting them without stems and dropping them in her apron. It bulged ridiculously with the mass of bloom, but she kept crowding in clipped pinky white petals, pretending to be conscious of nothing but her work.

Somebody had come up behind her, a tall, young fellow, supple and merry eyed. He undid the apron strings delicately, gathered the band in his hands, stretching daring arms about her waist, and said: "Stop playing your thousands, Phil! One rose ought to love her sisters too well for wholesale murder."

Philomena slid from his clasp, dexterously throwing the huddled apron within her hands. "If I were a rose, I had rather be clipped for potpourri than be left to waste and wither," she said with a delicious upward tilt of the chin.

"Being interpreted, that means you have not given up a stage career," Arthur Wayne said, catching her hand. "Phil, Phil," he went on, "you must give it up. I cannot bear to think of my rose, my rose of all the world, withering, fading, in the glare of the footlights."

"Stop! We have gone over all that!" Philomena said imperiously. "I tell you, I must go. It is past bearing, the way things are now. Oh, I know my aunts would not starve. They've a roof over their heads, and Uncle John—but I cannot speak of him. What I cannot bear longer is to see them pinched, unhappy, lacking the little comforts that mean so much in age, feeling themselves dependent."

"You know our home would be theirs," Arthur interrupted.

Phil gave him a reproachful look. "You won't understand," she said. "All their lives they have been somebody, gentlemen, able to hold up their heads. Gentlewomen hate charity. They risked money and lost it, against uncle's advice, for my sake. Now, when I am old I have a fortune in my throat. I must take care of them, even if it breaks my heart."

The last word was under breath. Wayne made to draw her to him, but a brisk, bustling voice behind him said: "So ho! Very pretty! Upon my word, very pretty! Are we rehearsing for Strephon and Chloe?" Then without waiting answer the newcomer ran on: "Miss Tryon, be ready for the early train tomorrow. I've a letter from Franzoni. He will try your voice, provided you come to him by 10 o'clock in the morning."

"I shall go with you," Arthur said, openly taking Phil in his arms. "I said you must choose, dear. Let me take it back. If you will, let me follow—everywhere."

"No, no! I will not let you spoil your life!" Phil protested, but he held her fast, saying, as he looked Music Master Graham square in the eye: "Philomena is my promised wife and not by a fair verbal promise. Wherever you may take her I shall go too."

Graham's eyes were quizzical, yet not unkind. "That's as you please, young man," he said, waving his hand up and down. "But if you'll heed a friendly word, stay behind, at least at first. You see, you'd be so potently, so palpably romantic you'd be set down not as a fact, but a press agent's fake. The voice there," nodding toward Philomena, "is so pure, so golden, so rarely true it needs to be kept high, not vulgarized. I give you my word the roaring lions supposed to haunt stage doors are really no more than yelping curly poodles. They tag after and fawn up on you for an encouraging look or word, come to the whistle and tumble over themselves to follow a finger even half lifted. But as for danger, my friend, even an unconscious look scares them. Miss Tryon has only to be herself in order to be always and everywhere perfectly safe."

"Notwithstanding I shall go," Arthur said obstinately.

Graham shrugged his shoulders. Miss Tryon, the elder of the aunts, came tripping between the borders, her delicately wrinkled face exhaling a spiritual fragrance like the scent of dried rose leaves. "Come in, all of you," she said eagerly. "There's a peddler on the piazza, an elderly man, and he looks so lovely that heavy pack. Such lovely things! Yes," deprecatingly to Philomena, "Martha and I let him show them, but indeed it was after we had told him we could not buy. I thought, though, maybe, Arthur—only his mother gets so much in the city. But really there is the loveliest length of brocade, almost exactly like my grandmother's second day's silk!"

As she spoke she had huddled the other three in front of her toward the house, much as she would have marshaled fowls a trifle unruly.

At the piazza steps Philomena sat down, but the men both fell to examining the peddler's wares. Graham, indeed, almost instantly caught up the length of brocade, crying as he threw it over Philomena's shoulder, "Here's exactly what is wanted for your first opera costume!"

In spite of herself Phil gave a little delighted cry, the silvery satin gown was so rich and lustrous, the apple bloom strewn over it so perfect in line and color. She was sorry when the peddler said respectfully:

"That, sir, is an ordered bit, so not for sale."

"Get another piece for your order; I'm bound to have this one," said Graham good humoredly.

The peddler shook his head. "There is not another piece like it," he said. "This was specially woven for a happy day gown."

"Who is to wear it?" Philomena asked softly, stifling a sigh. Somehow she found herself trembling, all her courage oozing away. She wished as she had never wished before that she had somebody of her very own to lean on. Her mother had died when she was born. Her father had gone away, disappeared, leaving her only a clouded name for heritage. She had never known until the trouble came; then Uncle John had spoken harsh truth. It was that, as much as love for the two dear old ladies, which kept her steadfast to the thought of going into the world and winning its applause.

She had never been curious or envious, but somehow there swelled in her a sense of passionate injury against the unknown who was to wear this happy day gown, ordered no doubt by a father's loving pride. She crushed the rich fabric between her fingers and fixed a long look upon the peddler's face.

"A girl is to wear it that is, if she chooses," the peddler said, moving a step nearer.

Then she saw that he was more travel worn and weary than aged. Dimly, uncertainly, she saw, too, a likeness that drew her electrically to her feet. Through the open hall door her father's portrait showed in the bloom and strength of young manhood. She glanced from it to the peddler and back again, then stood white as death, facing him, too shaken to speak. His eyes followed hers and grew misty as he cried:

"Sisters! Daughter! So I have really kept my play! Philomena, my baby, the happy day gown was brought for you."

Greedy Animals.

It may be doubted whether those of us who are able to obtain sufficient food without difficulty can appreciate the craving for sustenance experienced by sea birds and other animals which have often by the force of circumstances to fast for long periods. Gulls will eat until they cannot fly, and when they find pilchards on board a boat will continue their feast until they can only lie down and gasp. A superfluity of food comes at such long intervals that when it does come the avian intellect reels at the prospect, and what seems a horn of plenty brings dire disaster. Seeing that gulls and gannets know no better, we are not surprised to hear of a John Dory, stuffed to the very mouth, floating helplessly on the surface of the water, unable to escape from a flock of sea birds which have deprived it of its eyesight and will quickly take away its life.

A snake which thrusts its head through the palings to seize an unwary frog and finds itself unable to draw back again with the frog in its throat has wit enough to disgorge the amphibian and to deftly draw it through by the legs so as to swallow it on the safe side of the palings. But probably a snake which happened to be on the wrong side, in company with a frog, would consume it on the premises and so render itself incapable of wriggling through the bars.—Longman's.

Modest Charity.

They were discussing charity in the drawing room, and one of the gentlemen was inveighing with some sarcasm against benevolent folk who make donations and have their names published in the papers.

"Nearly all charitable acts," he said eloquently, "have pride or vanity as their motive. For my part I hate ostentation. I remember once when I was traveling through a part of the country where I was not known I came upon a lonely little station, where in the waiting room there was fastened to the wall a contribution box for the benefit of the sufferers through recent inundations."

"There was not a soul there, not a person in the neighborhood knew of my presence or was acquainted with my name, and I went and dropped a goldpiece into the box and slipped away unobserved. Now, sir, what I contend is that my secret offering was a more meritorious one than if it had been made on a public subscription list with a loud flourish of trumpets."

"You are right," said a listener. "That was genuine modest charity, and I don't wonder you brag of it."

The Motion of a Swimming Fish.

One of the most recent applications of chrono photography—by which is meant photography applied by means of a series of short and rapid exposures to the representation of moving objects in successive positions—has been devised in France for the study of the swimming motions of fish. A rayfish was chosen as the subject of investigation, and the successive photographs were taken at intervals of one-tenth of a second. They show completely the movement of the fins and present a similarity to the photographs that have been obtained of the motions of the wings of a flying bird.

The swimming action begins with a lifting of the front part of the fin. This lifting motion runs rapidly backward along the fin, the front part being in the meantime depressed once more, and just before the motion ceases at the tail the movement recommences at the front end of the fin.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Badly Wanted.

Sag Skidmore had been "sparkin'" Susie Jane for nearly three years without coming to the point. At last Susie grew weary of waiting.

"Sag," she said, "I want ter know now p'int blank are yo' goin' to hev me or not?"

"W-e-l-l, I dunno," Sag drawled. "Sometimes I think I will, en ag'in I think I won't."

"Now, whut do yo' see about me yo' don't like?"

"Well, I dunno. Some say yo're a mite nearsighted."

"Who sez that? Jest tell me who sez it."

"Well, Lizzy Hooper sez it."

"She does, does she? En she can't see ter thread a needle. W-y, I could see the eye of it plumb out ter the gate."

"Well, it's gettin' purty dark, Susie Jane, en yo'd hardly hev a fair show in', but gimme a needle, en I'll jest try yo'."

Sag moved slowly out to the gate and went through the motion of sticking the needle in the top of the post.

He stepped back and hallooed, "All ready, Susie Jane."

Susie Jane stood on the doorstep. She bent forward, stooped right, then left, raised on her tiptoes and appeared to be striving for a sight of the needle's eye.

"Now, I jest kin discern the light comin' through," she said at last.

"Susie Jane," drawled Sag, coming forward, "there ain't no needle there, but of yo' want me bad enough to look a hole through that pin I stuck up in the gatepost I reckon, by jings, I'll hev yo'."—Harper's Magazine.

Entered at the Boston Post Office, (Arlington Station) as second class matter

It was interesting to note the black smoke pouring out of the chimneys on Monday, the day of the cold snap. We imagine there will be lots of work for the old-time chimney sweeps before spring comes again.

Representative Stone, from this District, has a place on the Judiciary Committee, an excellent appointment and one that must be congenial to any member of the legal profession to which Mr. Stone belongs.

A dozen or more car loads of anthracite coal of the stove and furnace sizes were received at Peirce & Winn Co.'s coal yards on Wednesday afternoon, most of it being deposited in the coal pockets at Arlington.

As time goes on we have less patience and practically no sympathy with strikers and so-called labor movements. We find they are unjust, tyrannical, and usually uncalled for. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," but when he attempts to curtail personal liberty—prevent his fellow men from working, impedes business and trade, and works no end of damage to himself and everybody else, he is about as near an anarchist and nihilist as needs be.

Representative Bennett is a newspaper publisher and one would naturally think, after what the profession suffered and difficulties encountered in amending the old law regarding libel, that any member would be the last one to seek a repeal of the clauses that gave a measure of relief from old-time abuses. The fact is, however, that Mr. Bennett has presented a bill to amend the law, solely, it is intimated, because it furnishes an obstacle to his successful prosecution of a suit for slander. We trust our Representative and Senator will both oppose the proposed change, in the interests of simple justice. All that the newspapers ever asked was the privilege of submitting evidence to prove that no malicious or evil intent inspired the matter published, as a mitigation of damages claimed in a libel suit; and that is all the law grants.

Another signal triumph for the Marconi wireless telegraph was recorded in the papers of Tuesday morning, the inventor having sent and received a message from and to King Edward of England and President Roosevelt, at the new station on Cape Cod, this being the third time messages have been sent across the Atlantic and answers received. A man at the life-saving station, in describing what he saw during the sending of these messages, said:—

"For a few minutes a blinding streak of fire shot out from the pole and, when you looked at it, it made me feel creepy. The air seemed to be full of fire, and when they twisted and squirmed in shot this way and that, like things yet set at a display of fireworks."

The men at the station were not much disturbed by the report of gun-like noises, but when they heard of a spark the size of a woodcock flying about in the air, and of the big blazing visitant to one of the poles upon which is strung the government telephone wire to the station, all hands gave the vicinity of the telephone instruments in the office plenty of sea room.

One report before the Legislature which evidences remarkable skill as well as great care in preparation, is that of the committee appointed to revise the laws of the State regarding corporations. Their findings are that amendments and engraftings on previous laws, most of which were enacted prior to this period of gigantic combinations, no longer suffice, but are as much out of date as were the originals they partially changed. Among the changes proposed are provisions for abolishing the limitations upon the amount of capitalization which corporations shall be allowed to have; permitting division of stock into classes deemed advisable by the incorporators; defining more broadly the liability of stockholders and directors for official acts; revising the system of taxation upon domestic and foreign corporations; and requiring full and accurate description of the property held. "Practical Politics" says that attempted analysis offhand, of a report which it has taken the commission months to prepare, and which will engage the attention of an able and earnest legislative committee for a considerable time before it will be ready to report, would be gross assumption of perceptive powers at this stage of the question, but believes the recommendations will in the main be adopted.

Charles River Dam.

The Cambridge, Watertown and Somerville papers are backing enthusiastically and with unanswerable argument, the scheme for a folding dam to replace the antiquated and practically worn out Craigie bridge at East Cambridge. The construction of such a dam has received the approval of the harbor commission, the park commission and nearly every one else in places of responsibility in this connection and it ought to receive prompt approval by the Legislature.

The purpose of this dam will be to control the waters of Charles river and maintain that stream at a uniform depth to the tide-water limit, preventing the exposure of muddy banks along the river through Cambridge and beyond, and covering continually wide stretches of mud in the wider sweep of the river that are now left bare with every receding tide.

In apportioning the cost, Boston, Cambridge and Watertown are the only municipalities assessed, as they are the places to be directly and mainly benefited, but the entire Metropolitan District will share in a scheme that will transform that which is for many hours each day an unsightly spectacle into a thing of perpetual attractiveness, while at the same time contributing to increased healthfulness for miles around.

Increasing the Pay Roll.

The Boston Elevated Railway Company issued an order on Monday last that will result in an increase of wages or otherwise materially benefit more than 5,000 employees, which is said to be the most liberal scheme of wages ever offered by any railway company and is all the more notable for the reason that it was entirely voluntary upon the part of the management. Every man in the car service will profit to some extent as a result of the order. In an interview, General Wm. A. Bunker, the president of the company, said:—

"The company has determined to make a large addition to the compensation of its car service men. It will amount to nearly a quarter of a million dollars annually. We believe in maintaining the very best service and feel satisfied that our employees are unexcelled anywhere in a like service. Positive merit will be recognized by special compensation at the end of each year for every man whose record is of sufficient excellence. Veterans in the service will receive a higher rate of wages than is now paid, the amount depending upon the length of service. Men who wear themselves out in the service and become incapacitated as a result of age, will receive substantial contribution to their support."

The order provides, in brief, that men learning the business shall be paid $1 a day during the week or fortnight required for instruction, although they perform no service during that period that is of value to the road. All men have heretofore been required to serve without pay while being taught their duties. "Extra men," which means recently appointed men who have not been assigned to regular trips, are paid, as formerly, by the hour for such work as they perform, but they will be guaranteed practically a full pay for every day that they are on duty subject to call, whether they work or not. If they earn more than the amount guaranteed to them they will of course receive it. The regular pay of guards and brakemen in the elevated service is advanced 10 cents a day. All car service men, inspectors, starters, station masters and collectors, who have served for five years will have their wages increased 5 cents a day; those who have served ten years, 10 cents a day; and those who have served fifteen or more years, 15 cents a day.

Every blue uniformed employee who performs his duties satisfactorily will receive a reward of $15, or substantially one week's pay, in addition to his regular wages at the end of each year. Men who have reached the age of sixty and have been continuously in the service for fifteen years, or men of any age who have been in the employ of the company continuously for twenty-five years and are, in the judgment of the management, incapacitated for further service, will receive a contribution to their support for the rest of their lives of such an amount, not exceeding twenty-five dollars a month, as may be necessary to meet the circumstances of each case. 5,100 men will be benefited by the order. Of this number 1,900 men wearing service stripes will receive an immediate increase in their wages; there are 1000 one stripe men indicating five years service; 433 two stripe men indicating ten years service; 566 wearing three or more stripes, indicating fifteen or more years of service.

Fight the Pests.

Every real estate owner personally, and the general public as well, is or ought to be interested in exterminating the insects recently introduced here that have proved so destructive to foliage, and we therefore present the somewhat extended report of a recent address by Prof. A. H. Kirkland, consulting entomologist, on "Shade Trees and their Enemies," which contains a mass of valuable information:

The speaker described the principal requirement of tree growth, such as food, water and air, and showed how trees in cities and villages are obliged to struggle continually against adverse influences. Faulty planting, feeding and watering were discussed in detail as well as the damage done by gas, electricity, horses and insects. Of the latter the most dangerous are the imported elm leaf beetle, brown tail moth and gypsy moth.

The elm leaf beetle first feeds on the young elm leaves, making them appear as if riddled by shot. The slugs or immature beetles, however, cause the greatest damage. They hatch from the eggs in the course of two weeks and strip the under surface of the leaves, which turn brown and fall. In midsummer the trees where the slugs are feeding are often as bare and naked as in midwinter. Three or four stripplings are sufficient to kill even the largest elms. When the slugs are fully grown they descend the tree trunk and later change to beetles. A thorough spraying of the foliage when the slugs are feeding using some reliable arsenical poison is the best remedy. Many people kill the descending slugs by applying strong hot soap-suds.

The brown tail moth caterpillars winter over in colonies of two to four hundred in small tough webs at the tips of the twigs. In the spring the caterpillars destroy both blossoms and foliage, feeding voraciously and growing rapidly. Having stripped one tree they migrate to others and while they prefer pear and apple, will also attack willow, elm and maple. Aside from damaging trees these insects cause much suffering among human beings. The caterpillars hairs coming in contact with the human skin produce an intense and lasting irritation. The full grown caterpillars spin cocoons in sheltered places and emerge in July as white active brown tailed moths. This insect is easily controlled by cutting off and burning the webs during the winter season; otherwise spray the foliage with arsenical poisons as soon as the insects begin to feed.

Since the work of the state against the gypsy moth was abandoned, the insect has continually increased and spread and is now a serious menace. The egg masses are laid in tree trunks in August and contain about 500 eggs. The caterpillars hatch in the spring and feed on all kinds of foliage and often strip trees over large areas and become fully grown in July. The best remedies for use against the gypsy moth are to soak the egg masses with cresote in the winter or to spray the infested trees in summer with arsenical poisons.

Other shade tree insects were briefly mentioned and described, the remedies being nearly the same as in the previous cases. The speaker emphasized particularly the need of municipal work against insects on street trees. The shade trees of a town are as much of an asset as the municipal buildings. No town can be attractive or beautiful without healthy shade trees and trees cannot be healthy if insects are allowed to damage them. Many towns have provided spraying outfits at a cost of from $50 to $500 and spray the trees during the early summer. Other towns make contracts for spraying with reliable firms making this work a specialty. The cost of spraying even the largest trees can be reduced to a minimum by trained men, and even where the cost runs to $2 or $3 per tree it is a mere bagatelle compared with the loss which follows when insects are allowed to kill the trees. The speaker made a strong plea for a greater public interest in the preservation of trees to the end that not only the present but future generations might benefit by such action.

Pledged to Kindness.

The American Humane Society, whose chief aim is to prevent cruelty to animals through a proper education of the coming generation in the duty as well as beauty of the law of kindness, is engaged in a noble work, one that commends itself to every well intentioned person; and the efforts of its officers and representatives to reach the school children have received the heartiest approval and cooperation of those in charge of educational matters. The newspapers generally have also rendered material aid and we are glad of the opportunity to assist.

In carrying on the work, the grouping of schools in any town into a division has been found to accomplish more than any other plan tried in the past, and as an assistance to Supt. Leach in his work here in Arlington by giving additional publicity to certain facts, we give the following list of pupils already enrolled as members of Arlington Division, as follows:—

Brief News Items.

Friday morning's papers announce the signing of the treaty which will result in the building of the long delayed Panama canal.

Congressman Littlefield presented his anti-trust bill in the House, yesterday. It has been prepared with the utmost care and is believed to have executive force.

German war vessels have battered down the Venezuelan fort that a few days ago repulsed one of the fleet, by use of guns heavy enough to throw shells from vessels beyond the reach of the armament of the fort.

Thousands of tons of English coal are on the way across the Atlantic. It looks now as if there was to be a race between foreign shippers and the mining interests on this side to supply the demand. We look for a speedy reduction in prices.

Representative Luce of Somerville has introduced his caucus reform measures in the Legislature in renewal of the fight of last year. It will be recalled that his proposition called for an application from 14 Massachusetts of the Minnesota system of primary elections.

Brig. Gen. Wood, whose services in Cuba were not forgotten, has applied for service in the Philippine Islands. His request has been granted; that he will be assigned to general service in the islands; that he will sail in April. By law of promotion he will be Maj. Gen. in August.

Former Secretary of War R. A. Alger, by the ad interim appointment of Gov. Bliss, succeeded the late Senator James McMillan in the United States Senate, was on Tuesday elected by the State Senate and House to fill out the unexpired term.

The main building of the Children's Convalescent Home at Wellesley, which is a branch of Boston's Children's Hospital, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday. All of the 48 children who were inmates of the home at the time, and whose ages ranged from 14 months to 14 years, escaped without injury, as did the nurses and servants connected with the home.

The Boston Club—that organization that boasts of having founded the Republican party, is the oldest club in the city. It is a club that has had more prominent men on its rolls than any other club in the United States, as well as a number of other attributes of a meritorious nature—held its 200th meeting at Young's Hotel, Saturday afternoon, and the occasion was made a memorable one for the 100 and more members and guests who were present. From 1803 to 1899 was a prime mover in starting the club, and the membership embraced Wendell Phillips, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, John A. Andrew, Nath'l P. Banks, Henry Wilson, John L. Baker, and others identified with the "Free Soil" party of 1850. Harvey D. Parker was the caterer and when his hotel was built, the Boston Club was accorded a special privilege which held until two years ago, when changes in the hotel necessitated removal to "Young's."

Last Saturday morning Mr. Ira W. Holt, principal of the High school, came into our office bearing quite a "bundle," which when opened, proved to be a solid silver, two-handled loving cup 7 1/2 inches in diameter and 8 1/2 inches high. With pardonable pride he pointed to the engraving on the side which proved it to be the property of Arlington High Ice Polo Team, having won it eight times during the series of years it has been open for competition. Waltham High is the only team in the league that has ever had a prospect of winning, but recent victories have clinched Arlington's hold and now the trophy comes here to stay. At the session on Wednesday the team turned it over to the custody of the school, and doubtless it will be given a prominent place among the other decorations in the building. We are sure each team in succession appreciates the "coaching" of Prof. Holt, each season, which has enabled them to present a well trained group even in the earliest stages of the playing.

Theatrical Notes.

Another splendid bill of vaudeville is scheduled for the week of Jan. 26 at Keith's popular Boston playhouse. It is thoroughly understood by theatregoers that while there may be occasions when, despite the best efforts of the management, the show may be a trifle tiresome in spots, it is never vulgar, and every bill contains novelties that more than offset the material complained of. Among the enterprising comedians of the week are: "The Imposter," Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, in a new comedy sketch, "Why Doogan Swore off," Rice and Walters, in a novel acrobatic act, which is full of ludicrous situations; Billy Link, black face humorist and parody singer; Elvira Francelli and Thomas Lewis, high class vocalists, in a series of lyric melodies; Billy Clifford, in original songs and dances; Harry Wyman and Murry Garner, in Dutch specialties; the World's Trio, in costume songs and dances; the Golden Gate Quintet, a company of colored entertainers, and the Burto-Lowandies Bijon Circus, which will be a tremendous drawing attraction for the children.

The demand to see Mrs. Leslie Carter in David Belasco's great play "Du Barry," at the Hollis St. Theatre, Boston, has been so great, that after considerable persuasion, Mrs. Carter has consented to give two extra matinees, on Wednesday, January 28 and Wednesday, February 4. The Saturday matinee, but there have been hundreds of requests from persons living in near-by cities for extra matinees, and it is in compliance with these requests that the additional performances will be given. "Du Barry" as played by Mrs. Carter and a company of recognized artists, numbering over one hundred and fifty, is positively the greatest theatrical offering that the Boston stage has ever seen.

Estate of William J. Neville, late of Lexington, in the County of Middlesex, deceased, represented insolvent.

P. M. Harwood, the recently elected general agent of the Dairy Bureau of the State Board of Agriculture, has had an interesting and varied career. Born on a farm in Barre, in 1853, he grew to manhood in the atmosphere of the country home. Graduated from the Massachusetts Agricultural College in 1875, he made his home at Barre, where he took up dairying and the breeding of Holstein Friesian cattle. He established a reputation as a breeder of skill, the Imperial Government of Japan being among his patrons. About this time he served one term as a member of the State Board of Agriculture. In 1891 he closed out his interests in Barre and went to Ohio to establish a creamery plant. From this position he was called to the chair of agriculture at the Michigan Agricultural College, Lansing, being also agriculturist of the experiment station. On his return to the east he entered the employ of the Mass. Board of Cattle Commissioners. About three years ago he entered the employ of the Dairy Bureau and has since served as one of its agents. The Bureau has been for some time desirous of securing a general agent who could give his whole time to the work and who could make his headquarters at the rooms of the Board of Agriculture at the State House. Mr. Harwood is able and courteous, a hard worker and with an intimate knowledge of the affairs of the Bureau through his previous work under its direction. Mr. Harwood will have the charge, under the Bureau, of the work of the State in enforcing its laws against the fraudulent sale of oleomargarine and renovated butter, milk, etc., and with his known qualifications for the work a successful administration may be expected.

"I've made it a practice to put all my worries down in the bottom of my heart, then set on the lid and smile. The way to get cheerful is to smile when you feel bad, to think about 'somebody else's' headache when yer own is 'most bustin', to keep on believin' the sun is a-shinin' when the clouds is thick enough to cut." —From "Lovey Mary," The Century, January, 1903.

ELECTRICITY

Is indeed an interesting subject. The many and varied usages to which it can be put are without number. It can be made to heat as simple a toilet article as the curling iron, and then again its forces are so great it can be made to run the most powerful of motors.

Mrs. George Austin went to Worcester last week to attend the funeral of a dear friend who resided there.

Rev. D. C. Easton preached for the Baptists on Sunday evening, from these words, "Go thou and do likewise," and showed in a forcible manner our duty to our neighbors.

No schools on Monday, which could be construed more coal in the bins and less knowledge in the children's brains. Lexington has done well to keep its schools and other public buildings open thus far.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Eaton's many friends were glad to see them back in our village for a few days, when they have been guests at Mr. Edwin Spaulding's. They are spending the winter with their son and family at Dorchester.

A little more of the genuine anthracite has come into our village this week and the outlook seems brighter. Mr. James Frizzle brought three tons or more to parties here and we hear that Peirce & Winn Co. have delivered some also.

New England possesses a most tickle climate. We basked in the sunshine on Saturday and breathed the mild air and felt that spring was near at hand, but Sunday morning we were chilled through and felt that we were explorers landed at the North Pole.

Next Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Cochran will preach on "They Kingdom come," and in the evening Mr. Clayton R. Bowen will address the Guild on the "Message of Paul to the twentieth century." It is hoped these strangers who so kindly give their services will meet a good audience.

Mrs. Caroline Harrington had a little gathering at her eighty-eighth birthday, which milestone she passed happy, strong and well. It is rarely the case that one reaches such extreme age and carries with her through it all the happy faculty of being abreast of the times, reading all the magazines of the day and keeping up with the news of the newspapers. She is as young in the household as any member of it. What a blessing it is to see one grow old so gracefully.

The Friday Club held a pleasant meeting last week with Mrs. Fred Jones, on Mass. avenue. Mrs. A. Bradford Smith read a very interesting paper on "Hawthorne and his sweet and touching love story," and Mrs. George Worthen a paper on "Fact." Miss Brigham read one on Current Events and Mrs. Cochran one on the New Year. Dainty refreshments were served. The next meeting will be a social at Madam Locke's, next week Friday evening, Jan. 30.

Rev. L. D. Cochran preached his second sermon from the Lord's Prayer, last Sabbath, choosing for his text, "Hallowed be Thy name," his subject being, "Reverence." He said he thought there was a decided lack of it in the home and elsewhere, and that parents look too much to the day and Sunday school to instill this virtue into the children's minds. He said there was less reverence in our country than any other. In Canada the subjects showed much more true reverence for the king than our people do toward the President, and this growing irreverence would eventually effect our country and its best interests.

Mr. Henry P. Ives, of the Harvard Divinity school, Cambridge, addressed the Follen Guild, Sunday evening. It was a source of regret that the intense cold prevented a larger attendance, as it was very interesting, his subject being "The Message of Jesus to the twentieth century." He divided his subject into four parts, 1st, Wealth; 2d, Marriage; 3d, Divorce; 4th, Our Foreign Relations. He said it was not wise or right for young people to make wealth the object of life, and quoted the conversation of Jesus with the young man when he bade him leave all he had and follow him. 2d, marriage: He spoke decidedly against divorce, quoting what Christ said, "What God hath joined together let not man put asunder," and that Jesus did not sanction divorces and that there was only one place mentioned in the new testament where there was a seeming exception, 3d, The Industrial Problem: He believes that the employer should have more sympathy for the employee and the employee should not think alone of his wages but strive to benefit his employer, and this was the message of Christ today. 4th, Our Foreign Relations: He said it remained to be seen whether the Philippines would be able to govern themselves.

Wednesday evening of this week there occurred, at Emerson Hall, the supper and entertainment given by the Follen Len-a-Hand young ladies, assisted by their efficient president, Mrs. F. Caldwell. It was one of the worst days of the season, streets and sidewalks like a skating park, and the rain descended during the day. Owing to the night, one could not expect a large gathering, but the young ladies waited with alacrity on the guests and the tables were filled with coffee, rolls, cold meats, baked beans, cake and pies, which were excellent in quality and quantity. Mrs. Chas. Spaulding had charge of the entertainment, which consisted of a vocal solo by Mr. Orrin C. Pierce, "Out on the Deep," with Mrs. Spaulding as accompanist. Miss Olive Teale and Mrs. Spaulding sang a vocal duet with Miss Mildred Caldwell as pianist. Miss Beulah Locke gave a violin solo and Mrs. Nathaniel Nunn a reading, a selection from "The Cabbage Patch." All the numbers were excellent and were heartily applauded, and some responded to encores. Miss Olive Teale sold candy. The object, namely, the carpet fund, is a worthy one and this was a successful help.

Monday evening, Jan. 19, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett J. Harrington entertained about one hundred and seventy-five guests at their home on Curve street, it being the tenth anniversary of their wedding. The house was filled with the large company. All brought some token of remembrance and there were some beautiful silver gifts, tins of every kind and description, lovely flowers, glass ware and pictures. The bridegroom remembered his bride of ten years with a handsome Henry F. Miller piano. The Knights of Columbus gave their comrade and wife an elegant Morris chair; Mr. and Mrs. Finnegan, of Dorchester, a costly rug; Mr. and Mrs. Tarrant, of Boston, a handsome chair. Griffin's Quartette Club, from Boston, sang beautifully during the evening and there was instrumental music, beside the piano, which the large company enjoyed. Leo Janelle & Co. furnished the ice cream and the guests were treated to turkey, cold meats, sandwiches, cake, candy, fruit and coffee. A large punch bowl was filled with claret punch. Two colored waiters from Boston waited on the guests. The bride was gowned in a black silk skirt, with a white silk waist. The children of the couple enjoyed the festivities with their parents. Many of the guests came from other towns and cities as well as from Lexington. The house was filled with the merriment of arriving and departing guests until the morning hours and all was warmth and good cheer inside, though the wind was sharp and the cold intense outside. It was an evening long to be remembered and a pleasant mile-stone in the life journey. Their friends left with the hope that their lives may be spared to enjoy the silver wedding.

Friday evening, Jan. 16th, the vaudeville entertainment given by Charlestown talent for the benefit of the Baptist church, occurred in Village Hall. Quite a good audience was present and the exercises which were so well performed, reflected much credit on Miss Grace Cookson, of Charlestown, who showed so much pains-taking labor in drilling those who took part. The program was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Mabel Collins; recitation, "Reason Why," Miss Gertrude Hayden; song, "Mansions of Aching Hearts," by Miss May Shenick and Ella Lockery; recitation, "On Grandpa's farm," by Flossie Laskery; song, "I want to be the leading lady," by May Shenick, with a chorus of four children, and two dressed as boys danced the cake walk. Comedietta, "A narrow escape," Matilda Steele, Minette Cookson, Amy Lorimer, Grace Cookson. Song, "Stay in your own back yard," by Ella Lockery, a chorus by 4 children and Eva Lockery as the pickaninny. Recitation, "Seeing things at night," by Annie Christy; song, Mabel Collins; recitation, Eva Lockery; chewing gum, sung by a chorus of children; recitation, "Smack in school," by Minette Cookson; piano solo, Mabel Collins; recitation, "Lasea," by Miss Grace Cookson; Drill in Grandma's days, the actors being dressed in old-fashioned costumes, and then they sang "The Days of Auld Lang Syne." The Clover Leaf Dramatic Club gave that sweet good night song "I am so tired," and this closed a very good entertainment.

—The Standing Committee of the Baptist church met with Mr. B. F. Cann, on Monday evening. The church business meeting took place Wednesday evening.

—Next Thursday evening, Jan. 29th, the Baptist church will hold its annual roll call. All the members should be present, as this service only comes once a year.

—Several coal teams from out of town have been delivering hard coal on the hill this week. It seems that there is enough hard coal, if you are willing to pay the price.

—Next Tuesday the Suffolk North Association, of which Rev. J. G. Taylor and Rev. S. C. Bushnell are members, holds its meeting with Dr. S. E. Herrick, of Boston.

—Mr. Edward C. Lewis, a popular and well known resident of this town, was married at Taunton, R. I., on Tuesday, the bride being Miss Grace G. Hosie. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Woolley, of Taunton.

—Sunday morning Rev. Geo. W. McCombe of the Baptist church spoke from Matt. 24:42—"Watch, therefore; for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." He gave a very interesting sermon, to a good sized audience.

—The alarm of fire rung in from Box 34, Sunday evening, was caused by a fire at an old shed in the rear of W. K. Hutchinson's store. The all out signal was rung shortly after 7 o'clock. There was no damage done. The fire was of incendiary origin.

The music committee has organized a choir, with Mrs. G. W. Flint as organist. A very interesting Endeavor meeting was held at seven o'clock, with the pastor as leader.

It is expected the League will turn out a good base ball team this year. The executive committee will meet the honorary members on the coming week to talk over the advisability of starting a Ladies' Auxiliary and making up a program for the year.

—On Tuesday evening some of the young people of the Heights met at the home of Miss Sadie King, and formed a reading club called "The Hawthorne Literary Club." They will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays in the month, the next meeting being next week. The following officers were elected:—

Instructor, Rev. Geo. W. McCombe. President, Clarence Michaels. Vice-president, Rosa Berglund. Secretary, Clara Cann. Treasurer, Joseph Burr.

At the next meeting the life of Hawthorne will be studied. Fourteen young people joined the club.

—The slippery sidewalks and streets on Wednesday morning were the occasion of lots of fun. A portly gentleman left his house and started down Park avenue. Suddenly he felt an irresistible inclination to dance about and stand on his head. He compromised by sitting down in the gutter and sliding down the hill. Then he arose to his feet and stared wildly about for help. A neighbor came to his rescue with a pan of ashes and this gave him a good start for another slide. Throwing away his broken umbrella he was last seen hugging a lamp post, while waiting for his car.

—Tuesday evening the teachers of the Sunday school of Park Avenue Congregational church met at the parsonage and re-elected the old list of officers, as follows:—

Supt., Minot A. Bridgman. Asst. Supt., E. W. Nicoll. Secretary, C. W. Sloan. Treasurer, Miss Alice White. Librarian, Ernest Nourse. Asst. Lib., Harry A. Trask. Supt. Primary Dept., Mrs. J. G. Taylor. Pianists, Miss Della Bartlett and Miss Dora Parsons.

The reports for the past year were very encouraging and the outlook was never so hopeful for a great work as at the present. Several new features are to be introduced under the lead of the efficient superintendent.

—A large audience greeted Rev. C. L. Whitman at the Baptist church, last Sunday evening. Mr. Whitman expects to sail for Africa, Feb. 7th, where he is to engage in missionary work in the Congo Free State. He is to go in company with Rev. Joseph Clark who is now in this country and will return to his field of labor at that time. Mr. Whitman is a man of pleasing personal appearance and an interesting speaker. He held the attention of the audience throughout the address. About three years ago, the conviction came to him that he ought to go as a foreign missionary. The last place he desired to go was to Africa; but he was convinced after a time that he was wanted in that dark continent to preach the gospel. During his remarks he said: "I expect some hardships, but not so many as former missionaries have endured." With the use of a map, he explained about the country, how entrance was gained to the Congo Free State, by the Congo river. He told of the deep degradation of the people, giving many sad as well as amusing illustrations to show what kind of people he expects to work among. He vividly portrayed the wonderful effect and wonderful power the gospel has upon the people, saying that Christianity opens the way to civilization, changes customs, opens schools, etc. Mr. Whitman was a classmate of Rev. G. W. McCombe, the pastor of the church, and together they graduated from the Newton Theological Institute, last June.

—A number of Heights people attended the concert at Bedford on Thursday evening, given in the Town Hall. Miss Edith Mann sang a solo and Miss Josie Learned was in the chorus. The concert was a great success. Much credit is due Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Loomis, also the rest of the talent. After the concert the talent was entertained at the home of Mr. Webber, where a fine collation was served. Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Learned, Mrs. Partridge and the Misses Henderson were also guests at the house.

—A horse belonging to Jas. H. Colpitt, of Crescent Hill avenue, became badly frightened Monday morning, about 8.15 o'clock, and caused considerable damage. He was standing on Mass. avenue near Mr. A. D. McDonald's when he was frightened, probably by the electric. Making a dash up the avenue, he reached Park avenue, turned the corner and dashed across the side walk, leaping through the window of Stone's grocery store, scattering the goods in every direction, smashing bottles of olives, preserves, etc. Finding that he could not pull the wagon into the store after him he backed out and prepared to run again, but was checked by Mr. Wm. Mundle, who happened along at that time. The horse was cut about the legs and head and the shafts of the carriage were broken. Considerable damage was done to Stone's store. It was a wonder that no one was hurt, as it happened at the time when children were on the way to school, coming from every direction.

Crescent Hall Dance.

Either a storm or some other adverse circumstance seems to be bound to try and "quack" Miss Dwelley's series of dancing parties in Crescent Hall, Arlington Heights, but they do not succeed—she is equal to every emergency. Frozen pipes at Crescent Hall, Friday evening of last week, threatened to break up the Assembly, when a pleasant company of young people had assembled at the hall to participate in the second party of the series. Of course the hall could not be heated by the steam heat, but J. Prescott Gage, who has charge of the property, secured a half dozen kerosene heaters and after the dance was on, nobody, save perhaps the spectators in the gallery and the matrons reciting, felt that the temperature of the hall was anything but agreeable. The ladies in delectable sent a chill down one's spinal column, but they looked blooming and not a bit frost bitten.

It was an exceedingly attractive party and just enough present not to crowd the floor and make dancing pleasant. A few more would have been desirable in adding to the receipts to pay expenses, but this did not interfere with the pleasure of the care-free participants. A subdued and pretty light was shed on the scene by covering the electric lights with Chinese lanterns, which, with streamers of red crepe paper, gave the hall an inviting warmth of color. As usual, the ante-room at the left of the hall was fitted up for tete-a-tetes, and was also used as the refreshment room. Frank Grey's orchestra played exceedingly well—it is improving right along and working ahead, slowly, perhaps, but surely, toward the front ranks. There were four pieces of music on this occasion.

Mrs. Allan Mott-Ring and Mrs. George R. Dwelley received the guests, both ladies naturally fine presence being enhanced by handsome evening toilettes. Both were in black. Some of the prettiest toilettes seen for a long time were worn on this occasion by the young ladies, who had the advantage not only in looks and dress, of course, but in the choice of partners, for the gentlemen were quite in excess of the ladies present.

Miss Dwelley looked lovely in a ruffled and tucked white organdie over blue, the delectable waist having the shoulders outlined with a wreath of holly leaves and berries. Among those present were:

Miss Good of Lexington, the Misses Kendall, Miss Goodville, the Misses Wiswell of Cambridge, Miss Melville Perry, Messrs. Fred Curry, Oscar Schnitzer, Harold Ring, Mrs. Harry Alderman of East Lexington, George Lloyd, Herbert Kendall, Miss Brown of Jamaica Plain, Miss Ring, Mr. Robinson, Miss Ethel Tewksbury, Mr. J. Herbert Mead of Lexington, Mr. Rogers of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lord of Somerville, Miss Martha Prouty of Cohasset, Mr. Gaskell of Cambridge, Miss Ethel Batchelder of Somerville, Messrs. Wm. Hyde, Eliot R. Fowle and Miss Hilliard of Arlington Centre, Mr. Fred White, Miss Ethel Grant, Miss Bertha Hall of Watertown, Miss Foster of Cambridge, also Miss Woodman of the same city.

These are by no means all those present, but the list was difficult to obtain, there were so many present who were strangers, even to the management. Mr. Harold King assists Miss Dwelley very acceptably in the management of the series. The party was conducted on the assembly plan. Miss Dwelley and Miss Perry, the latter in a stylish white lace toilette, were the ushers, assisted by Messrs. Fred Curry of Melrose Highlands and Oscar Schnitzer of the Heights.

—The Universalist church of Melros was well filled Tuesday afternoon and evening at the annual meeting of the Middlesex Conference of Universalist Sunday schools, including nine schools of this district. The program opened with a praise service conducted by the Rev. C. N. Myers. The Rev. R. Perry Bush, of Chelsea, spoke on "The Aim of Sunday school work," and the Rev. Charles Conklin, superintendent of the Universalist churches of Massachusetts, delivered an address on "Making the Most of Our Actual Opportunities and Resources." The evening devotional service was conducted by the Rev. H. F. Fister, of Arlington, and Joseph L. Dixon, former president of the Bible Normal College, spoke on "The Supreme Need of the Sunday school." Officers elected for the coming year are as follows:—

Pres., F. Percy Bennett, Saugus. Vice-pres., Rev. S. G. Spear, Maplewood. Sec., Mrs. Nellie M. Wadsworth, Arlington. Treas., Parker R. Litchfield, Bedford.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Handsome Shirt Waist.
The shirt of Persian panne has a white ground, on which is printed a design in pale blue and delicate leaf green. It is made with a plain back and has a narrow box plait in front. The cuffs are straight and plain. The stock is of cream white crepe de chine and has flowing ends that widen toward the hem.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

White Frocks For Children.

As regards indoor wear for small maidens and their younger sisters and brothers, white wash materials compose the best of the garments. Needlework of all sorts is used on them. Rows of delicate fagotting show between hand tucks and insertions of fine embroidery, and the whole effect produces a look of daintiness rather than of splendor. Some of the little Mother Hubbard frocks for the tiniest maids, indeed, have an angelic plainness. Made of the sheerest India lawn this short full skirt, which drops from a round, square or pointed yoke, may be only hemmed. The yoke and cuffs of the bishop sleeves are entirely of the needlework.

For girls who cannot wear these pretty wash things in winter little wool frocks in white and brilliant tints are provided, though the white wash gimpes to be really elegant. In the same way fashion's fads make long stockings on small children seem out of place in the house. White or black socks have almost entirely superseded them for the smartest wear, though long white stockings are also admissible. If the child is susceptible to cold these should be of merino.

Return of the Tailor Gown.

Millers should really cease their rumbling, as once more the tailor made gown is most popular. The military collar, a most severe test of sartorial art, is again in vogue. Not only has the neat, close fitting coat returned, but even the old riding habit bodice is seen. The box plaited skirt, so popular, requires the heavy pressing and ironing of the tailor. The simpler the garment the harder the work.

The New Woolen Lace.

A novelty which is appearing on the very smart walking gowns and which may even to a certain extent put the Russian and Roumanian embroideries in a second instead of first place is the new woolen lace, woven especially to match the woolen goods, such as hop sack and frieze. It comes in various colors, the prettiest being soft grays, greens and browns.

Far Hats With Feathers.

Many fur hats are trimmed with feathers this season, and the combination is quite as pretty as it is stylish. Soft chinchilla hats, like the one illustrated, are decorated with a single ostrich plume laid perfectly flat on the crown of the hat, the end of the plume hanging off and curling around on the hair of the wearer. A buckle or soft rosette of velvet or satin usually holds the plume in place. Another pretty fashion in furs is the combination of two skins.—New York Mail and Express.

Harmony is the Thing.

It is not enough to choose a pretty fabric for one's gowns. Each detail must be thought out with care, each bit of trimming chosen with an accurate eye. No one quality has been so powerful in placing French designers where they stand today as their subtle sense of color and of relation.

A REMARKABLE SHOT.

Fired in the Dark. It Injured Three Men Half a Mile Away.

"One of the best and most remarkable shots made during the war with Spain," said a gentleman who made an effort to get into the thick of the fight, "was, in my judgment, made at Miami, and the man who fired the shot was a Louisiana boy and a member of my company. He was doing duty as a provost guard at the time. It was late at night when the soldiers were roused by the quick, clear crack of a Krag-Jorgensen on the outskirts of the camp. No particular attention was paid to the matter at first, as only one shot was fired. But with a couple of officers we went out to where the guard was stationed in order to find out just why it was that he had fired at that time of night. He explained that he had seen a man slipping through the bushes some distance away and had called on him to halt. He failed to obey the command, and the guard blazed away at him, more to frighten him into a stop than anything else. Of course, the fellow never halted. He was probably too badly frightened to stop at that time.

"While we were talking to the guard we heard a fearful noise at least half a mile from the guard's station, and we made a break for the place to see what the matter was. We heard several people screaming as if in great agony. Down the road we went at full speed, and in a short while we came upon a little cabin which stood on the roadside. The noise was in this cabin, and I never heard such groaning and wailing in my life. We found three men in the house. They were in great agony, and we asked them what was the matter. 'We have been shot,' they said, and sure enough they had been shot.

"One was shot in the right arm, another in the back and the third in the hip. They had all been wounded by the same bullet. The man who was wounded in the arm was lying on his right side. The ball passed through his arm. Next to him one of his companions was sprawling out on his back, and the bullet split the hide on this part of his anatomy as smoothly as a knife. Then it passed through the fleshy part of the third man's hip and sped on.

"We could not find the ball. It had passed through the side of the house, wounded the three men in the way indicated, bored through the wall on the opposite side and kept on going. Now, that cabin was fully half a mile from the point where the guard was stationed, and yet the shot he fired had wrought all the havoc we found."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

ANATOMICAL.

Each ear has four bones.

The body has about 500 muscles.

The lower limbs contain thirty bones each.

There are 25,000 pores in the hand of a man.

Man is the only animal that possesses a real nose and chin.

The human skeleton, exclusive of teeth, consists of 208 bones.

The eight muscles of the human jaw exert a force of about 500 pounds.

The wrist contains eight bones, the palm five, the fingers have fourteen.

The smallest bone in the human body is in the lenticular, which is seated in the ear.

The work performed by the human heart each twenty-four hours is equal to the lifting of 120 tons to a height of one foot in the same length of time.

Discovery of Purple.

A dog belonging to Hercules Tyrtus was one day walking along the seashore when he found and ate a murex, a species of shellfish. Returning to his master, the latter noticed that the dog's lips were tinged with color, and in this manner Tyrtus purple was discovered. The color was used in the robes of emperors and nobles, and the expression "born to the purple" meant that the person was of high birth. It is strange to think that the favorite color of royalty can be traced to the curiosity or hunger of the dog of Tyre.

The Spirit Was Willing.

"See here," cried the tailor as Sloppy, having donned his new suit, started out of the store; "you're forgetting something."

"Indeed?" said Sloppy. "What's that?"

"You must remember our understanding. I made this suit for you only because you said you wanted to pay cash for it."

"And I still want to, but I'm sorry to say I can't."—Philadelphia Press.

A Matter of Business.

"I cannot understand, sir, why you permit your daughter to sue me for breach of promise. You remember that you were bitterly opposed to our engagement because I wasn't good enough for her and would disgrace the family."

"Young man, that was sentiment; this is business."

ARLINGTON LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. John Easton has received the appointment of cashier of Arlington National Bank, in place of Mr. Wm. D. Higgins, resigned. Mr. Easton comes highly recommended and has had experience in the Suffolk and Washington National Banks which will finely equip him for his work here. The family, formerly resided at Arlington on the Mansfield place, on the avenue, and was prominently identified with Pleasant street Cong. church where the father of Mr. Easton was an officer up to the time of his death.

The annual meeting of the Orthodox Congregational church was held in the vestry of the church, on Pleasant street, Friday evening, Jan. 16th. Rev. S. C. Bushnell presided and twenty-seven members of the church were present. It was a harmonious, pleasant meeting, with the affairs of the church in every way satisfactory. The following officers were elected:—

Clerk, Elbert L. Churchill.
Treasurer, Edward H. Norris.
Deacon, 3 years, Edwin Mills.
Standing Committee, Richard Tyner, Willard G. Rolfe.
Chief Usher, Solon G. Bartlett.

For the first time since the founding of the big packing house, the John P. Squire Company, some 61 years ago, by the original John P. Squire, members of the Squire family now have no hand in the administration of the business. This state of affairs results from the election of officers at the annual meeting of the corporation, on Tuesday, in New Jersey, when Frank O. Squire, Fred F. Squire, John P. Squire and J. C. Massie were dropped from the board of directors, which action was effected by reducing the number of the board from thirteen members to nine. The Messrs. Squire, it is understood, will have something definite to say touching the matter in a few days.

The first large consignment of hard coal came to the Peirce & Winn Co. on Friday afternoon of last week, when nine car loads were received at their yards at Arlington centre. More followed on Saturday and by considerable consignments from time to time during the week. The coal was retailed at $5.00 per ton. Quite a number of individuals have been acting as coal merchants on their own hook and employed teamsters to deliver coal from the Boston wharves to residents in this town, thereby making quite a saving per ton, so we are told. We have even heard of a woman of the town who has proved herself quite as smart and enterprising as her brother man. She received a car load and attended to its delivery to private individuals. We trust she made something out of the deal, for her push and energy were deserving of a just recompense.

Mr. James Higgins passed away at his home 889 Mass. Avenue, Sunday morning, after a short illness. A severe attack of the grippe developed into pneumonia which found an easy victim in Mr. Higgins in his weakened condition. Mr. Higgins is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Cleary who makes her home with her parents, and three sons, the eldest of whom, Mr. George D. Higgins, is employed at N. J. Hardy's bakery. Mr. Higgins was employed for many years in the well known grocery at "High street," of which Mr. Matthew Rowe is proprietor. High mass was celebrated by the Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald at nine o'clock, and the funeral was largely attended. Burial was in the family lot in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, Arlington.

On last Tuesday evening occurred the installation of the officers elect of Menotomy Council No. 1781, Royal Arcanum, a list of whom was published in a recent issue of the ADVOCATE. The work was performed in a very efficient and able manner by W. H. Chase, District Deputy Grand Regent, assisted by W. H. P. Smith as grand guide, and C. E. Hale, H. E. Wallis, D. A. S. Barker, F. K. Hayes and F. H. Allen, all members of Rumford Council No. 113, of Waltham, which has a large membership. The retiring regent of Menotomy Council, Howard B. S. Prescott, was presented by the installing deputy, in behalf of the Council, with a very handsome past-regent's jewel, for which he expressed his thanks in a graceful manner. Speeches were in order, after cigars were lit, and a pleasant hour was spent in discussing facts relating to the Royal Arcanum.

The First Congregational church (Unitarian) holds its monthly evening service next Sunday, at 7 o'clock, when the minister, Rev. Frederic Gill, gives the second lecture-sermon in the series on "Four Phases of Spiritual History," the special topic being "Christianity; what it is, and why we hold it." This church has been experiencing much difficulty with the question of coal, and on one or two Sundays lately it has been none too warm. The energy of the parish committee has at last secured a supply of anthracite, and the congregation and visitors may depend upon the church being comfortable in the future. To the services next Sunday all are cordially invited. Mr. Gill will be the preacher at both services. In the evening the special music will be as follows:—

Organ prelude, "Offertoire in G." Wely; Anthem, "Jubilate," Cole; selection "Abide with me," Barnby; duet, "Rejoice in the Lord," Schnecker; quartet, (unaccompanied) "Lead, Kindly Light," Buck; organ postlude, march, Wely.

Arlington High and Hopkinson ice hockey teams played a game on Spy Pond last week Friday, which is rather late to report at this time, but may be desirable as a matter of record. It was a fast game and Arlington had to work to win out. No scoring was done until very near the end, when Hicks and Barnes each succeeded in scoring a goal for Arlington, winning the game, 2 to 0. The summary:—

Arlington High—Spurr, Hicks, Vietz, Cushman, J. C. Gray, forwards; Hillard (captain), cp.; Kelley, p.; Taylor, g.
Hopkinson—Brown, Maloon, Hammond, Barnes, forwards; Worthen, cp.; Grimes p.; Leslie, g.

Score, Arlington 2, Goals by Hicks, Barnes. Referee, Lunt. Time, Walsh. Time, 20 and 15m periods.

The same afternoon on Spy Pond Cambridge Latin defeated Boston Latin at ice hockey by a score of 6 to 0. All the scoring was done in the first half, but Cambridge outplayed Boston at all points throughout the game. The work of Taylor for Cambridge was specially noteworthy.

A goodly audience assembled in the Baptist church last Sunday evening, in spite of the intense cold. Mr. Harold B. Wood presided at the organ and lead the congregational singing, which was excellent, all joining heartily in this part of the service. Rev. Dr. Watson conducted the service and introduced Rev. Charles W. Briggs as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Briggs has been a missionary in the Philippine Islands since the American occupation and the recital of his experiences made a most interesting evening and gave all present not only a clearer idea of what is being done through missionary labors to win converts to the church, but a better understanding of the characteristics of the people, their habit of thought and manner of living. He cited the remarkable verification found in the islands of God's Bible message to his people "I will not leave myself without a witness." In going among the natives he found that the message had gone before, but had been forgotten in the main by the people—all they remembered was that some one they called Father John, but who remained only a hazy memory to them, had gone about doing good, winning their reverence and love while teaching the principles of Christ's life, and so recognized in Mr. Briggs' teaching something that reminded them of former times but only in its legendary aspect. The missionaries got their first hold on the people, so the speaker stated, through their passionate love of music which is used as an indirect influence to bring them, finally, into more direct communication with missionaries so that they can teach and work according to the word of Christ.

Bowling Interests

The Mystic Valley Bowling League met Friday evening of last week at the Boston Athletic Association to make preparations for the candle pin season. President G. S. Littlefield was in the chair, and C. E. Crowther acted as secretary. Representatives were present from the Kernwood Club of Malden, Charlestown, 390th A. A., Calumet Club of Winchester, Newtowne Club of Cambridge, Arlington Boat Club, Towanda Club of Woburn, and the Medford Club. It was voted to begin the season the week of February 16, the clubs to constitute the league being the same as make the present organization, with the exception of the Charlestown Club, whose place will be taken by the Old Belfry Club of Lexington. A. Orne of the Kernwood Club of Malden was appointed to draw up a schedule.

Last week ended, in the Amateur Bowling League, with Charlestown's place at the top undisputed. Newtowne's win of a straight from "the Battery" put that team level with Commercial in the second berth. There was no change in the other positions. B. A. A. lost a fine chance to advance by dropping a match to the tailenders. Hales of Newtowne continues to lead the individuals. Ashworth is second now, Kinsman of Charlestown is now third. Fuller of B. A. A., with a somewhat reduced percentage, continues the premier spare roller. The table:—

TEAM STANDING AND PER RECORD.
Team	Wm. Lost.	Total	Average
Charlestown	10	8	23.85
Newtowne	15	9	20.94
Commercial	15	9	20.96
B. A. A.	12	12	20.64
39th A. A.	11	13	20.51
Old Dorchester	10	14	20.40
Dudley	9	15	20.63
B. C. C.	8	16	20.43

Dudley defeated B. A. A. in the Gilt Edge candlepin games last Tuesday and so strengthened its hold on first place in the league. On the same evening Old Belfry was defeated by the So. Boston at their Yacht Club house. Old Belfry's defeat did not cause it to lose second position, but it has to share the place with South Boston Y. C. There were two other changes. Old Dorchester moving to tie with B. A. A. next to Medford, and Highland breaking away from the leather place tie with Colonial. The O. B. C. game scores were as follows:—

SOUTH BOSTON.
Team	Wm. Lost.	Total	Average
E. McK.	103	88	27.8
Reddy	84	81	25.6
Bumt	75	83	24.7
W. McK.	85	88	25.9
Ross	87	97	26.6
Total	434	437	26.1

Wednesday evening the A. B. C. team was evidently not in good form, for it dropped a game to the Woburn Towanda on its own alleys, only two reaching the 500 line. Whittemore made a total of 597. The score:—

TOWANDA.
Team	Wm. Lost.	Total	Average

By its defeat of A. B. C. team on the home alleys, Thursday evening, the Brockton Commercial gained the head of the list in the "Well" League, the totals being Commercial 2706; A. B. C. 2495. Tower of the Commercial made 637.

Death Without Warning.

Word was received at Lexington on Wednesday of the sudden death in New York city of Dexter Larcum, on that day, in his thirty-first year. The family, including his mother, Mrs. Cyrus Martin, did not even know of his sickness. The deceased was born at Beverly but came to Lexington in boyhood, where he now has many friends who will sadly regret his death. He has now for several years been in New York and has the past two years represented the firm of Greeley, Cushman & Record, wholesale woolen merchants, at their New York house. He made his home in that city, at the Bible Club house. He was a Mason and also a member of the 5th Avenue Baptist church, N. Y. The night prior to his death he attended the automobile show in Madison Sq. Garden, in company with Mr. Clarence Wetherbee, of Arlington, who went on to New York to attend the exhibition and to be the guest of Mr. Larcum while there. Mr. Larcum died of heart disease after an attack of only two hours' duration.

The remains were brought on from New York, on Wednesday, by Mr. Frank Sawyer, a business associate, but formerly a resident of Arlington. One of Mr. Larcum's employers was Mr. Gardner S. Cushman, of Arlington, and Mr. Record, of the firm, is a brother-in-law of Capt. Geo. E. Richardson, of Arlington. C. T. West took charge of the body on its arrival at Boston and had charge of the funeral which takes place at the Unitarian church, Lexington, on Saturday, Jan. 24, at 12.30 o'clock. The burial will be at Beverly. Three brothers survive the young man.

Lexington's Water Question.

Wednesday evening, at the town meeting in Town Hall, Lexington disposed of its vexed water question by voting to enter the Metropolitan water district and make ample provisions to substantiate such action. It authorizes the committee appointed at a meeting Aug. 25, and the Selectmen to make an agreement with the Metropolitan water and sewerage commission to supply the town with water, and the Selectmen are instructed to authorize the town treasurer to pay $27,250 to the state as the cost of entering the Metropolitan system. To provide money for laying additional water mains, 20 gold bonds are to be issued for a total of $44,000. Of the amount $2200 will be paid off in 1904, and the same amount yearly until 1923, when the loan will be extinguished.

Representative E. C. Stone acted as moderator, and under Art. 2, H. H. Putnam made a strong plea to retain and enlarge the town's supply. A general discussion ensued for and against the provisions of Art. 2d, participated in by Messrs. Munroe, Norris, Mitchell, Sampson, Bayley, Sias, Parsons and others, but when the question came to vote the motion carried by a goodly majority. Forty-six voted to enter the Metropolitan district and nineteen not to do so. Articles 3 and 4 related to laying pipe, securing funds and other business details consequent on entering the district the whole matter being covered by a comprehensive motion, presented by Frank C. Childs, which was unanimously adopted. We allude to the gist of this matter in our first paragraph. On motion of Geo. W. Sampson, Art. 5 was indefinitely postponed. It related to a change in the method of electing a board of assessors, changing the term of office from one to three years. We will continue to elect them in the old way.

O. B. C. Notes.

The next card party at the club house, designed for all its members, will take place Monday evening, Jan. 26th, in the hall.

Tuttle and Crowe are the winners in the two-men bowler tournament at the club, but several games still hang fire before the "final" can be declared.

The January entertainment will take place, Tuesday evening, Jan. 27th, at the club house, when Miss Edith Colburn Noyes has been engaged to impersonate the famous characters of Chas. Reed's "Leg Wollington."

The hop in the hall of the Old Belfry Club, last Saturday evening, was one of the most successful of the entire season. Between sixty and seventy young people participated and Mr. W. H. Ballard, the director of these parties, has every reason to feel gratified at the success which has attended them this season. They are informal in every respect, evening clothes in almost every case being tabooed by the participants, the business suit being the popular one and the shirt waist girl very much in evidence. The music was only that of the piano, but Mrs. Merrill gets more music out of this instrument than some people do from an orchestra. It was a pleasant evening outside, so there was nothing to prevent a large attendance and as the company was a congenial one the evening was full of enjoyment. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Norris.
Mr. Harry B. Osgood.
Mr. Geo. S. Teague.
Mr. Fred R. Galloupe, Miss Ruth Galloupe.
Mr. and Mrs. Roger I. Sherman.
Mr. H. G. Locke and Miss Locke.
Mr. Geo. L. Stratton and Miss Swenson, of Concord, N. H.
Messrs. Lester T. and Arthur Redman.
Mr. E. D. Parker and Geo. Locke, Arlington.
Mr. Edward Worthen and Miss Eleanor Worthen.
Mr. Irving Pierce and Miss Pierce.
Mr. Richard and Miss Mary Wellington.
Mr. Chester and Miss Bertha Hutchinson.
Mr. Fred E. Hayes and Miss Ballard.
Mr. Jas. W. Smith and Miss Clara Russell.
Misses May and Helen Bigelow.
Mr. Walter J. Luke.
Misses Lily O. Smith, Gertrude Smith, Theodora Robinson.
Mr. Andrew Marshall, guard on Harvard foot ball team.
Mr. Roy Hatch, Harvard Medical.
Mr. Herbert Kendall, Miss Alice Kendall and Mr. Ned Holmes, Arlington Heights.
Mr. Arthur Damon, Melrose.
Miss Houghton, of Concord.
Mr. Charles and Miss Marjorie Wiswell.
The Misses Busiel and Miss Clara Shaw.

Lexington Local News.
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Floyd Russell entertained their "Round Table Friends" on Wednesday, as is their annual custom on the occasion of Mr. Russell's birthday. This year the Russell House is favored by an unusually agreeable coterie of guests, and they were included by the host in his delightful birthday party, making in all a brilliant and large company of guests. The old-time air of the dining room made a handsome setting, especially as the tables were lavishly adorned with American Beauty roses and red candles in crystal candle sticks, which made a soft light. Most of the guests were very elegantly attired in full evening dress, so the scene was a brilliant one. The menu, served at seven, left nothing to be desired. Miss Williams, the talented young violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Graves, on the piano, played during dinner. After dinner, Miss Mertz, accompanied by Miss McClure, delighted all with her mandolin selections, and Mr. McFarland gave piano selections. Whist, at which attractive favors were bestowed, and dancing filled the evening full of enjoyment. The house was freshly trimmed with holiday greens. There were, much to be regretted, several absentees, breaking the completeness of the circle of twenty, but they were toasted in the most approved manner at dinner.

After six months of severe sickness and suffering from a complication of Bright's disease and dropsy, Mrs. Francis L. Cobb passed away at her home on Parker street, at twelve o'clock, midnight, on Monday, Jan. 19. Mrs. Cobb's maiden name was Augusta A. Hall and she was born on one of the old homestead places in Roxbury, married Mr. Cobb at Barnstable, his native town, forty years ago last April, 1902, and celebrated that event on the anniversary day with an at home her many friends will recall with pleasure. The couple had resided on the home place for twenty-five years, when they came to Lexington twelve years ago. Mrs. Cobb at once identified herself with the Baptist church and has been one of its most prominent and loyal members ever since. Her cordial, genial nature, true kind heart won many friends who will sympathize with the family in their great bereavement and will miss her presence and help in the church home. Besides her husband she is survived by two children and four grandchildren. Her children are Mr. Francis M. Cobb of Lexington and Mrs. C. E. Snow of Dedham, and both were with the mother when she passed away, so quietly at the last that it was hard to realize the spirit had departed into the spirit world of those we love and have to miss for a little time. The funeral took place at the house on Friday, at half past one, Rev. F. A. Macdonald, of the Baptist church officiating. Many beautiful floral tributes surrounded the handsome casket and softened, in the loving atmosphere they breathed, the last sad rites. The burial was in the family lot at Forest Hills Cemetery.

The thermometer run from four to ten below zero, Monday morning. That cold corner on the Bedford road made the biggest record.

Miss Beatrice Stevens was, so we are informed, a victim of the treacherously icy sidewalks on Wednesday which were given an added danger by being flooded with water. She slipped and fell in such a way as to sprain an ankle.

Mr. Henry W. Lewis broke his collar bone on the left side, Wednesday morning, by a fall on the slippery concrete in front of his door, at his home on Bloomfield street. Dr. Winslow, acting as a substitute for Dr. Valentine, attended Mr. Lewis.

This (Friday) afternoon, Mrs. Taylor and Miss Taylor entertained, in their usual agreeable and hospitable way, a party of lady friends, at Larchmont, the diversion being a game of five-handed euchre, with unique favors at its close. Refreshments were served.

Lexington members of the 12th (Webster) Regt., attended the annual reunion, when the regiment was entertained at the headquarters of Post 15, on Wednesday. Past-Dept. Commander Gilman was present in full feather and helped make the occasion an eventful one.

Miss Swenson, of Concord, N. H., is spending several weeks with Mrs. J. Odlin Tilton, and her visit here is being made very pleasant in many ways by her kind hostess. Miss Swenson's fiancé, Mr. George Stratton, was also a guest of his sister, Mrs. Tilton, over Sunday.

Andrew J., the sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gallagher, died at his home on Lincoln road, on Wednesday, from scarlet fever. This is the second son of the family, who has passed away within a short time of each other. Other members of the family are sick with the dreaded malady. The lad was buried in Mt. Benedict Cemetery. Just as we were going to press word was received of the death of another son of this afflicted family.

Last week Geo. M. Wilson, the local ice dealer, cut a goodly supply of ice from Grangers Pond, in the vicinity of Lowell turnpike. The ice was thirteen inches thick. Monday his gang of men went to Bedford to help Mr. Young of that town, to harvest his local supply. Mr. White has the privilege of taking ice from Lexington Reservoir and Simonds Pond, which usually is sufficient to fill all his ice houses.

Last Sabbath evening, in the chapel of Hancock church, Rev. Chas. F. Carter opened his series of Sunday evening addresses on men of the Old Testament. His topic was, "God's making of men," taking typical Biblical characters to bring out his thought. The music was, as usual, a most inviting feature. There was a trio by Miss Redman, Messrs. Arthur Tucker and Lester T. Redman, and a quartette by this same group, including Miss Rose Morse in the alto part. Miss Morse presided at the piano.

Private individuals have taken it into their hands to become retail coal dealers and thereby have helped out quite a number of stranded families. Mr. Chas. T. West purchased a car load of nut coal last week, which was distributed with short dispatch among sixteen families. The Hancock Cong. church being greatly in need of at least "brimstone heat" sufficient to keep the body warm, found its pastor equal to the emergency, in perhaps a rather unorthodox fashion, for he also became a coal purveyor. Rev. Mr. Carter ordered a car load of egg coal, which came to hand none too soon for those anxiously awaiting its arrival.

Next Tuesday, Jan. 27, 3.30, p. m., the second and closing meeting of the month of the Literary Union will take place in the hall of the Old Belfry Club. Rev. Mr. Cummings, the associate of Rev. Edw. Everett Hale, D. D., in his pastoral duties, and late professor of sociology at Harvard University, will be the speaker, his subject being, "The Curve of Social Progress." On Tuesday evening, Feb. 3, the Union will hold its first annual "Gentlemen's Night" in the Town Hall, when that bright and entertaining speaker and extensive traveler, Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, will be the attraction.

The home of Mrs. Geo. W. Spaulding, on Grant street, was the meeting place of the Tourist Club, Monday afternoon. The papers were on quite exceptionally entertaining subjects in the American History course being pursued by the club. Mrs. T. C. Sias had a paper on the Lees of Virginia, including Richard, Arthur and the popular "Light Foot Harry." Mrs. E. A. Bayley gave an interesting synopsis of Daniel Boone, culled her facts from President Roosevelt's book entitled "Winning of the West," which she referred to in enthusiastic terms as a book worthy of perusal because of its entertaining qualities and intrinsic merit.

PNEUMONIA NEAR AT HAND

JAYNES & CO.,
27 Border St., East Boston, says:
Gentlemen, I feel very grateful to you for calling my attention to your greatest of all cough remedies, Jaynes' Balsam of Tar. Whether I would have lived to tell this story without it is a serious question, but one thing is certain and that is your remedy cured me of a cough which was getting so severe that pneumonia seemed near at hand and I was about to give up work. Jaynes' Balsam of Tar cured my cough, healed the bronchial tubes, and to this remedy I give all the credit.

CURES A COUGH IN TWO DAYS

MR. HARRY LANDERS,
27 Border St., East Boston, says:
MISSRS. JAYNES & CO.
I would not, if possible, allow a day to go by without a bottle of your Balsam of Tar in the house.
We have relied upon it for more than five years, and it rarely takes more than two days to cure a cough with any member of my family by its use. We find it particularly valuable to the children.

NEVER WITHOUT A BOTTLE

MR. J. F. GOODE, 15 Vinal Ave., Somerville, Mass., says:
My family have used Jaynes' Balsam of Tar several years and never mean to be without a bottle of it in the house. It is prized so much by us as a remedy for coughs and colds that we never lose an opportunity to tell others of its value. We have induced many of our friends to try it. We are enthusiastic in its praise.

GOOD WINTER AND SUMMER

JAYNES & CO.
Balsam of Tar is good winter and summer, and in the future I will keep a bottle on hand ready for the first signs of a cough, and not be disappointed as was my case yesterday. I sent out for Jaynes' Balsam of Tar in the house, but tried one of the ordinary cough remedies on sale, put in a wretched night, my cough much worse in the morning and my mind made up to have a bottle of Tar Balsam as soon as possible.
Respectfully yours,
(Signed) PAUL W. RAYMOND,
6 Lincoln St., Somerville, Mass.

HALF A BOTTLE CURED HIS COUGH

JAYNES & CO.
I was sick for two months with severe cold and hoarseness, and after using several different remedies without relief, was recommended by a friend to use Jaynes' Balsam of Tar, and after using about one half bottle was entirely cured.
(Signed) ARTHUR D. GOSSON, E. Lexington, Mass.

IT CURED A BAD CASE OF GRIP

MR. G. B. WOOD, 75 Union St., Boston, says:
I suffered for two weeks with the "Grip," which finally attacked my throat so that I was unable to speak. I tried two good doctors without help, but one bottle of Balsam of Tar cured me. Should be pleased to verify and enlarge upon this statement if any one will call on me.
